Workshop Description:

Participants of this workshop will learn about the importance of cultural relevance and language access in health care and social services and will be introduced to conceptual models and instructional strategies on how to put these concepts into practice. They will learn:

- How to effectively respond to patients and clients' cultural and language needs
- How to provide culturally relevant care within a patient and family-centered perspective
- How to advance their knowledge and skills of health care needs and health disparities of diverse populations
- How to improve service delivery for limited English proficient (LEP) patients and clients
- How to promote and foster a culture of learning about diversity within their workplace
